Cornell's freshmen, like their elders, head their class in height and weight, although their average is ten pounds lighter than their 'varsity. The Wisconsin freshmen are within a quarter of a pound in weight, although a little shorter. The freshmen race is thought to be between Cornell and Winconsin.

The Ithacans are very confident over the outcome of the 'varsity race,' which is due in a large measure to the opinions of Coach Courtney, who said this morning: "Our boys are in the pink of condition and age ready to fow the race to-day or any other day this week. If they don't win it is not because they have not worked hard or don't know, how to row, but because there is a better crew on the river."
